i hate when you do that what?

active listening... i never know whether you're actually listening to me or concerning yourself with conveying that you're listening
- from the movie, The Life of David Gale

04/12/21 15:51

In Other Words

- the book claims that Japanese has no general term for water... but instead descriptive terms for hot water and cold water

04/12/22 14:37

habitual sloppy language

“have a good one”

- every day, the same utterance
- of course, the intention is what counts, not the specific words
- almost any words will do
- actually, no words are necessary

- a sincere smile and meeting of the eyes is quite enough
- our culture is strewn with sloppy (apparently not logically consistent or even organized) talk... which would be OK... even necessary and poetic... if we had been taught to distinguish between analytic and poetic applications of language — modes of thought

04/12/22 14:47

disaffected teenasian girl

probably 15, wearing a hooded sweatshirt, low baggy denims, chains, fancy sports shoes... all brand new and quite expensive

- she wore a contemptuous scowl
- she probably thinks that's who she is

04/12/22 15:00

opinions about ourselves

? how is it that we come to formulate our opinions about ourselves

? out of what bricks is this edifice built

? are our opinions any more valid (whatever that means) than anyone else's opinions

? is my knowledge of ME more than mere opinion

? aren't i special

04/12/22 15:23

just being a nice person goes a long way really being nice to a little girl customer instead of acting irritated when/how does acting become sincere

- i was thinking that it would not hurt me if i were a nicer person

? who/where is this me that could get hurt

- the ways we have to talk/think about self are not adequate
- philosophers have been debating the same tired old issues for 2,500 years... and have solved nothing
- there are no philosophical problems
- there is only linguistic pathology

04/12/22 16:11

oldest intoxicating beverage

- between 8,000 and 9,000 years old
- vessels contained wine made from rice, honey and fruit

04/12/23 15:57

Brain Surgery for Dummies

- i haven't seen this title yet

04/12/24 14:51

Thinking for Dummies

04/12/24 15:13

feeling safe

- no one in a capitalist economy, can ever really feel safe
- no matter how much you have, you could lose it
- survival should not be an issue in a civilization worthy of that title

04/12/24 15:25

? types of letters

? can i classiiy my letters into types

- then i could have 3 or 6 letters in total wIth little individual starters
- i could then keep a list of people along with which letter they get

types of letters

- sales
- introduction
- seek collaboration

04/12/25 14:38

mom is proud that her son died in iraq

an article in the register about a mother who's son was killed in iraq

- she has initiated an effort to purchase and donate specialized cooling vests to soldiers in iraq

WOW

- a company is producing the "Iraq Pack"... cooling vests, bandanas and a specialized, ergonomically designed helmet liner... for only $125
 - make sure your loved one is comfortable while liberating the people of iraq
- so now the soldiers' families must purchase the gear to help them survive

? does the army allow outside equipment to be used... i wouldn't think so

- well, i wouldn't allow it
- it has all sorts of social ramifications... breaking solidarity among soldiers

04/12/25 15:01

start a blog by edna hosner

- i am a n-dimensional hyperbeing that, to put it in terms a human can comprehend, crashed into one of you sapes and got stuck
- usually this occurs when sapes are a year or two old
- been struggling with your primitive language
- i know i'm not the only one
- in fact, i suspect that it's occurring more and more often
- maybe i should start off with a different analogy
- i record my observations to assist me in making sense of this complex world in which i find myself
- then it occurred to me that it might be useful to other mutants
- it is offered to the cosmos in that hope
- something happened to me when i was 21
- i never recovered from it
- i woke up to the fact that i didn't have a clue as to who i was or what i was doing here
- up to that time, i had been living out the assumptions of my family, my language, my culture, my genes, my language machine
- i was free... and totally confused

04/12/25 15:18

pope praying painfully

midnight mass in saint peter's basilica

- the subhead said , "Pope celebrates mass"
 - that is one weird use of the word celebrate
- ? are celebrate and cerebrate related

? where/when did they come up with concept of painful prayer

- it's quite common
- it's part of the sincerity show
- this way, we know he's really praying hard

04/12/25 16:24

i don't get it

? why don't more people just kill themselves

- it appears that they have nothing to live for

04/12/26 9:40

the end of religion

- the most important conflict is yet to come... the war between the old and new religion
- belief is a form of linguistic pathology and must be eliminated if we are ever going to live together in peace on Earth
- there is no room for belief of any kind
- all ideas are human ideas, products of human LMs

04/12/26 14:47

resisting change

at Borders, an asian woman with long black hair almost down to ankles

a left-over hippy with lots of hair

- it must be a pain to maintain an old persona
- that's what makes people old
- if you haven't been born again in the last ten years, you are getting old
- you must reinvent yourself every 10 years at least

04/12/26 15:06

categories

- categories is becoming an interesting factor
- WS and Palm OS are forcing me to think about my work in a way i've never considered
- it feels somewhat limiting, but, on another hand, it's imposing an order that might be just what is needed
- categories and types of documents
- this seems suspiciously similar to Russel and Whitehead
- fuzzy and sharp categories
 - gendo is now sharp
- defining categories by what they exclude

04/12/26

15:17

gendo is simple

- gendo could totally avoid the philosophical implications
- focus on the big five — in their simplest forms
 - the
 - dualism
 - reification
 - identity
 - absolutism
- i won't even talk about the philosophical issues with anyone unless they have finished the orange belt course
- maybe he could use merit badges instead of belts
- it's been my experience that 98% of the time, 98% of sapes are not capable of engaging in a meaningful philosophical discussion
 - they can be trained tho... reprogrammed

04/12/26 16:11

dabblers in philosophy are contemptable to me

- someone is reading "the 5 people you meet in heaven"
- like chicken soup, it's designed to make people comfortable in their ignorance and stupidity

04/12/27 0:08

basic units of thought

fonz → words → utterances → group1 → group2 intentions

utterance types

- proposition (past-present-future)
- requests/directive (future)
- propositional function

utterance intentions

- story
- persuasion
- request for behavior

04/12/27 1:50

? why do i write

? what do i hope to accomplish

? what are my intentions in writing

- save Earth
- create a new species of human being
- no point in writing for myself any longer... it's got to be shared

04/12/27 14:49

big beer belly

- he's wearing clean nice clothes, an expensive leather jacket, well-groomed beard, nice glasses, etc.
- his shirt doesn't reach his pants so his big hairy belly is hanging out so the question is

? does he know

? does he care

? would he be embarrassed

? would he be surprised

? does he stop in the hall on the way out of the house, check in the full-length mirror that just the right amount of his big hairy belly is blasting out

04/12/27

15:56

the big issues

? what are my big issues/categories

- figuring out categories and making them really useful is proving an interesting undertaking
- one issue that has arisen is a choice between many small docs or a few larger ones

04/12/27

16:01

down's kid

at Borders

- he's rocking
- i understand it in some deep place
- it's comforting somehow

groups2

etc.

04/12/27 16:09

- aha, i don't need to make sense of it on my handheld
 - all i need here is this document and a couple others that are hot at the moment
 - all the rest can go on the mac and i can do all my organizing and editing there
 - all text enters the system thru this doc
 - i could decide which docs go on the handheld and which don't handheld
 - what do i need on the clie
 - what do i want on the clie
- mac
- everything goes on the mac

? how do i manage moving files around

04/12/28 15:02

? what am i gonna do with all this text

- give it to every human/sape thing

? what is the point of it all evolution

a turning point in hIstory/evolution

? but why should an guy/person/human/monkey/entity care

- the basic western concept of self is so shallow that even a cursory examination reveals its self-contradictory assumptions

04/12/28

15:16

the blog

- i certainly don't want to defend everything that will appear
- i don't believe any of this
- at best it can serve as as a source/inspiration/starting-point for a new conversation

reality as religion

- we need to change the conversation
- people have become trivial... in thought, in deed, in self-conception
- ? who is actually writing this stuff anyway

04/12/28

15:25

beyond adultery

a natural phase/development beyond sexual maturity available most easily to those who partook abundantly of their monkey-sexual proclivities

- it's as much beyond sexual maturity as adolescence Is beyond toddling
- not merely a difference of degree
- sexuality introduces an entirely new domain of experience
- the same is true for epistemological maturity
- historically, this realm has been involved in what was called religion

- it's quite possible nowadays to separate the truth from the shit
- from general systems theory we get the proposition that there are NO closed systems.... except possibly the whole universe... whatever that might mean
- the implications are clear... there is only one entity in the universe the universe itself.... bob

04/12/28 16:19

gendo fundamental

- declaring an intention to make sense
- no source of stupidity or ambiguity, once uncovered is a admissable
- if challenged, all propositions could be iormulated in RarthLing

04/12/28 16:34

Titanic yet again

- once it becomes clear that the ship is going down, ANY effort toward rearranging the furniture in the grand ballroom is a form of insanity
- it's not yet clear to most people that the old world is going down
- ? how bad will it have to get before people in large numbers begin to wake up
- well, it's clearly not bad enough yet fat monkeys

- a fat body is a symptom of a monkey in control
- but, a healthy body doesn't necessarily indicate a healthy mind -- an ability to think and evaluate independently on behalf of borg/Earth/bob
- so their bodies may be wondrously beautiful, it says only that their monkeys are not in primary control of the bodies
- american culture tends to idealize a healthy-appearing body
- some are compulsively healthy

? is that good

04/12/29

15:20

self-conscious

- i now find myself thinking a little differently about my ranting
- for, more than 30 years, i have written with an intention of clarifying my thinking on some matters of interest to me... conspicuously language and its relationships with thinking, creativity, intelligence, politics and spirituality
- it didn't have to make sense to anyone else

- hell, it didn't have to make sense to me
- it was a way to put vague thoughts outside (on paper until recently) so that i could see what i was thinking more clearly
- only recently has it occurred to me that these rants might be of some value to a small % of the present human population who are interested in whatever it is that these rants purport to be talking about

04/12/29

- you think in language
- the structure of the language in which you think determines the quality and appropriateness of your thinking
- english, like all wild languages is a mess
- it is not well designed for precise analysis and accurate communication
- EarthLing is a debugged subset of wild english, designed for clear thinking and accurate communication

Zero Tolerance

Stupid Unconscious Assumptions

fake hand-washer

- after pissing in a urinal in the restroom at Borders, a guy turned on the water for a few seconds, then turned it off and left
- he didn't take or use any paper towels
- so... either he walked out with his hands dripping wet... or... he didn't wet his hands at all and it was a show for an unknown stranger in a stall who cannot even see him
- perhaps there is some other explanation

04/12/30 06:46

reading the paper

- reading the paper gives the bull sapes something to talk about at the counter so they can sound knowledgeable

04/12/30 15:01

- that means students must actually apply gendo in their real lives

? how did it come to pass that a religious mode of so-called thought came to dominate western civ

- one of the fundamental xian errors is the idea that creation ended on the 7th day
- creation continues this very moment
- and evolution is how bob does It

05/1/2 11:59

atheism

- not believing in God is not a logical equivalent to believing there is no God
- merely not believing leaves the question open
- strict atheism, believing there is no God, is as dumb as jesusism or judaism or any of the other BSs out there

05/1/2 15:00

archiving bookmark tiffs

- an interesting issue has arisen concerning whether i should archive old bookmark tiffs or delete them, thus eliminating any possibility of reproducing any more originals
- in this art world, value is partly determined by scarcity
- somehow, it's not real art if it's merely coming out of an inkjet printer... not to mention that the images themselves are generated by a program

05/1/2 15:35

Jim Washburn

- i've enjoyed reading your essays/rants in the oc weekly recently
- thanks for taking the time and effort to actually think
- you interviewed me many years ago, when you worked at the la times
- do you remember the gendo guy
- in case you don't, please find the text of that piece below
- my work/obsession continues
- i'd enjoy an opportunity to get together with you again, over a cup of coffee at Mimi's or Borders Cafe perhaps
- i'm not asking for an interview
- i'm asking for an opportunity to share a little of what i've learned about language in the years since we last talked
- any small thing i can do to assist you in becoming an even more effective writer/thinker would help satisfy my need/desire to participate more fully in the coming metamorphosis of Earth, the end of the age of nation-states, the end of the age of religion, the age of economics, the end of homo sapiens sapiens, the emergence of Earth
- let's talk

i am so blessed

- as i was writing, i noticed a small (3-4 yr old) asian boy -- apparently lost and starting to cry

- my heart went out to him in a way that i haven't experienced before
- there was almost no hesitation in my moving to his aid
- and the hesitation was in looking around to evaluate the situation...

05/1/8 14:58

you have to be careful

... what you pretend/play

- john at Borders jokes that the only reason he smokes is because he wants to have a gravelly voice like tom waits
- one danger of this kind of language play is that it blurs distinctions between fantasy/conception and reality/perception
 - it blurs distinctions between analysis and poetry teach your kid to think — ad

If you think in English, you're confused.

- most of what we mean with the word think is to talk silently to ourselves
- that's what we DO when we think
- we think in language
- although English is taking over Earth, it is not perfect
- it is riddled with erroneous unconscious assumptions, imposed on our thinking by our pre-literate, pre-historic, knuckle-dragging ancestors
- we are moving into a new era of human history
- preparing your child to meet the challenges is the greatest gift you can make to them
- teach your child to think

- the school system won't
- english (or some descendant of it) appears to be taking over Earth
- we could say that english is the best language in an evolutionary sense
- but it doesn't necessarily follow that english is therefore perfect
- it is merely adequate
- to make it exquisite is the job/task of those who choose to undertake it... those who have a calling

? where did you learn how to think

? what makes you think you know how to think the greatest gift you will ever give your child is an ability to think clearly and communicate accurately

- intelligence is a set of teachable skills... chief among them being language
- most of what we mean by the word “think” involves talking to ourselves... silently we hope
- in the school system, your children are taught to answer the questions the teacher asks... they are taught what to think
- what they need to learn is how to think... how to ask empowering questions, precise questions
- when they grow up and move in the world, there will be no one to tell them what the questions are
- in life, we have to figure out the questions and the answers
- the quality of the questions we ask determine how our lives unfold
- clarity in language is the basis of all useful thought

- tell them what are the questions

California English

The phrase “to tell them what the questions are.” appears in something i was writing. I asked an college history professor friend of mine to proof it for me. He said it was wrong and should be, “to tell them what are the questions.”

When i pressed him for a rationale he admitted that it just doesn't feel right.

I'm fairly open about these things and don't really care what the verdict is, but I have to admit that his way definitely feels wrong to me.

I used to teach ESL his way strikes me as the type of common error that I would correct in one of my students.

My friend is from an earlier generation (in his 70s now) so I'm wondering if this could be an example of something that has changed recently, like the pronunciation oi “often”

I'm interested in others' opinions on this matter.

Thanks,

Heron

a note on the word dimension

- there is no such “thing” as a dimension
- “dimension” is a word for a figment of human imagination/creativity
- we don’t live in a 3-dimensional world
- we live in a world of sensory experience...
- 3-D is a way of thinking about it... a way of talking about our experience
- basically, a dimension is any aspect of experience that can be totally defined by a single number
- so there are as many dimensions as we are creative enough to invent
- theories can never be true
- they can only be more or less useful in specific situations
- a theory doesn’t describe THE WAY IT IS
- a theory describes only A WAY OF THINKING ABOUT IT

? who is there to be mindful or eqanimous letter

- i detected that a couple things i said rattled your composure a bit in our brief phone conversation several months ago
- good
- your very composure rattles some aspects of “me” too
- that’s a good thing as i see it
- you are about as enlightened a speaker as i’ve heard (but alan watts got to me first)(my lineage is alan watts/alfred korzybski)
- but you still do much of your thinking/analysis in unreformed English
- i could be useful to you... and you could be useful to me
- i invite you to test my enlightenment/liberation
- since you are one of the most enlightened people i am aware of, your analysis of/reaction to what i call my liberation is of some interest to me
- there are few people in the world whose opinion about anything i consider worth considering

- on another hand, i can see that you are quite attached to certain ways of thinking about things
- fair enough, i am too
- but i also know that the map is not the territory... no way of talking/ thinking about the way it is is THE WAY IT IS
- it's merely a compression wave in a fluid medium generated by a complex pattern of muscular contractions
- of course, that's merely one way of thinking about it... another compression wave

it's so simple

- the problem with the world is people
- there is nothing to prevent us from creating paradise... except us
- sape are ignorant, unconscious, stupid and malicious... and generally unwilling to see that truth in themselves
- we don't distinguish between what is actually happening and my opinion about/theory of/explanation for what is actually happening
- although it's not impossible for a sexually mature sape to reprogram its language machine, it's probably more reasonable to concentrate efforts on the next two generations... children less than 10 years old
- we have completely misconstrued the nature of and uses for language
- there are 5 problematic english words/concepts that together contribute to hundreds of really dumb ideas passing unconsciously thru your LM every day

- any 8-year-old can understand 4 of them immediately... no big deal
- the
- dualism (either/or)
- absolutism (all, every, none, etc.)³
- identity (same, etc.)
- reification (-ness, -hood, -ship, -tion, -ence, -ty, etc.)
- a difficulty in talking about this is that the realization that occurs is not an event in the language machine

- defining species by interbreedability is not an unreasonable way of thinking about the vast majority of the living world much of the time
- but it is not THE WAY IT IS
- it's just a way of thinking
- there are other ways of thinking about things that are quite different and shed much light on matters that are confusing and paradoxical from the standard analysis
- one way is to distinguish between beings that know the difference between what's happening and their ideas about what's happening... and those that don't
- those that don't or won't are insane, pathological linguistically

- i read the article in LAWeakly
- it's good to see that you're still at it... and that you've been so successful... heck, you're still alive

- i am to language what you are to trees, although you've been much more successful at increasing public awareness of your issue
- i'm still formulating the basics
- i hope to be 1/10 as successful as you having a compelling story to tell

- i have so far failed to enlist others
- that's partly due to the fact that i'm still developing basic ideas
- but i'm getting close
- the basic formulation is this
 - most of what we mean by the word think is talking to ourselves (usually silently)
 - the language we use to do that thinking is deeply flawed
 - certain erroneous assumptions were imposed on our thinking because we had english programmed into our skulls before we knew we even existed
 - it's too late for most adult
 - after puberty sets in, the language machine is pretty much set
 - of course, any given individual can attain to unconceivable heights, but it's not a good bet statistically
 - but the real opportunity is with children
 - there is nothing in gendo that any normal 10-year-old can't understand
 - the only real problem with Earth is us... and more specifically the ways we conceive of our world
 - our actions flow out of how we think about/conceive our world
 - the only real hope i can see is raising a new generation of people who can actually think... who aren't burdened by the unconscious, erroneous assumptions that have been imposed on us for centuries... millenia
 - liberation from the language machine is a trivial achievement if learned before puberty

a fundamental distinction

- i am not my language machine getting people to think more effectively about Earth... taking personal responsibility entails a new “self”... a bigger “self”

- i’m actually being selfish in degrading Earth
- it’s Earth looking thru these eyes
- actually, i’m pissed off most of the time
- anyone who’s paying attention should be pissed off
- this so-called civilization is a nightmare
- i can see how we can live together in peace and abundance
- the only thing stopping us is us... the we we think

- i'll talk in terms that are not inappropriate for a zen group, many of whom are probably familiar with the hindu concept of maya
- maya is created and maintained by language
- liberation is liberation from identification with processes in the LM
- you may very-well be liberated
- being liberated doesn't automatically reprogram your language machine
- newly liberated people frequently are speechless for awhile... sometimes for quite a long while
- their presence is compelling and their language often idiosyncratic, but most revert back to talking in ways that only serves to further entrap the seekers
- if our present ways of talking about liberation worked, we wouldn't still be talking about it
- liberation should be a non-issue... nothing you have to pursue... a fact of existence, like sexuality
 - epistemological maturity at 8 - 12
 - sexual maturity at 12 - 15
- the main point is always pretty similar
- most of what we mean by the word "think" involves talking to ourselves and others
- english, like all wild languages, is a mess

- merely having knowledge of this... being able to enumerate specific problem structures/words does little to eliminate them
- in conversation, we don't choose our words consciously
- there isn't time for that
- our LMs do it for us... according to the programming it received
- most sapiens actually believe everything they hear it say
- they think they said it

- english has certain default values... not unlike defaults used in database entry procedures

? what amount of stupid erroneous assumptions is acceptable when engaged in rigorous analysis

- we are not independent identities
- your body is not separate from the most distant galaxy

D.A.I.R. to be less stupid

inappropriate dualism

absolutism

reification

- there is certainly nothing new about any of this
- what's new is an idea of zero tolerance for stupidity... of actually attempting To reprogram one's LM to eliminate all DAIR
- there is nothing in the particulars of gendo that a 10-year-old couldn't understand
- the difference between knowing about gendo and actually living the application is the difference between knowing about king henry VIII and being married to charles laughton

- it's not easy to do
- i fail all the time
- but i don't stay crazy for very long before i hear some of the stupid things my LM is saying and that wakes me up... usually
- it would be much easier for a group of people working together for the purpose of assisting each other to reprogram
- i've been working on it for 30 years and i can honestly say that i am a lot less stupid than i used to be and i'm not done yet
- actually, knowing about it can be a bad thing... it acts like an innoculation to strengthen your present programming
- so i only talk about specifics with paying students... people who actually are trying to reprogram their LMs

apz statement

98...

- that's ok
- there was a time when 98 were worms
- language is a major factor in the maintenance of the hypnotic trance
- after liberation
 - controlling stickiness is a long way past becoming merely unentangled
- everything that is wrong with the personal, social, human world is either totally or at least hugely created and maintained by operations of your language machine
- we are at a turning point in Earth's development
- humanity is a subsystem of Earth
(remember... a way not THE way)
- 98% of the time, 98% of people live in a linguistically induced state of hypnosis they call being awake
- this trance is induced and maintained by language
- the structure of a language has consequences... personally and planetarily
- english, like all wild languages,
- liberation is liberation from identification with processes in the language machine
- gendo is a method of studying operations in the LM and reprogramming if desired
- i don't foresee any end to the process soon
- one of the projects is EarthLing, a debugged subset of wild english, designed for clear thinking and accurate communication
- all gendo monks are research associates on this project

- besides... all you sapes look alike

05/5/15 14:43

- all you sapes look alike

05/5/15 14:58

- just saw the philosopher richard
- in our talking, he brought up wittgenstein's analogy of language as being entangled in a web
- i responded about raising a generation of children not entangled in the web
- i realized that the web itself is not the problem
- the problem is that it's sticky
- and you don't have to do away with stickiness altogether
- stickiness could be useful if controlled precisely
- controlling stickiness is a long way past becoming merely unentangled (liberation) back to the multiple elves (me) incident with James

- in places i spend a lot of structured time, i apparently develop locked in elves
- in the first milliseconds of the encounter, the Borders self categorized James erroneously (based on ambiguous time-bound processes)
 - a. something is moving
 - b. it's a sape
 - c. it's gesturing to me
 - d. it's a guy
 - e. it's a young asian guy
 - f. with a bible
 - g. it's one of those xtians i've talked to here before
- all of the above occurred in less than a tenth of a second

- it was all settled for the Borderself
- Mimi's elf never even showed up
- James is associated with Mimi... not Borders
- so even after he told me his name, mimi didn't get it or show up
- borders didn't think there was a problem
- its analysis worked
- altho it did notice what it considered an overly strong reaction to asking the name
- so, James is now a link between Borders and Mimi's elfs

- ? or do they have magical powers
- ? why can't i see them
- ? is there something wrong with him
- ? or, is he just different, maybe even special in a good sense... like a prophet or shaman
- he is in a dangerous position in a capitalist world
- he has no commercial potential
- money is the measure of all things in capitalism
- but in whatever it is that will replace capitalism in Earth, a guy like him (provided he doesn't break the rules) should live a secure existence as a valued member of the transape community the rules...

- show up for the draft and do what you're told (2 moons/year)
- no violence of ANY kind
- exile to australia is the only sentence
- any 4 citizens may initiate exile proceedings

- i can imagine email being spoken in the voice of the sender (if you have their parameter file)
- my job is to eliminate unconscious assumptions imposed by english
- actually, i'm more interested in what is said than in how human it sounds
- many people think that there are more than one way to say the same thing
- that is not true
- different strings of fonemes generate different responses... always to the editor of ?enlightenment

- i prefer the word liberation
- the very concept of enlightenment is self-contradictory in english... who is enlightened
- it's a scary word to many... good
- enlightenment is too languagey to help anyone who has'nt actually experienced it
- the concept "enlightenment" is insufficient for those who haven't experienced it and unnecessary for those who have
- all ideas about it are not it
- all ideas about it are ideas about it... patterns of neuro-muscular movements in the head end... compression waves tn a fluid medium
- meaning is a function of language
- liberation includes but is not limited too liberation from the hypnosis (maya) of linguistically induced trance that has come to be called reality... from believing everything you hear your language machine say... from reification of the grammatical "i"... from mistaking the map for the territory
- enlightenment will have to take care of itself

- i just discovered BIDOUN
- what an eye-opener it is
- the answer for all peoples in Earth is to wake up from the illusion of objectivity
 - to realize that all ideas are human ideas...
 - embodied in human languages...
 - articulated in human blood and muscle...
 - the blasphemy of mistaking a way of thinking about something with THE WAY IT IS...
 - that belief, itself, is the great sin
- you may not achieve that totally, but it is important to declare it openly as a goal and work toward it as an ideal... seeking out and eliminating your own unconscious assumptions and taking responsibility for your own assumptions

- ask your readers to tell you when think think your beliefs are showing
- replacing beliefs with conscious assumptions and accepting responsibility for the construction of my personal reality is the most liberating action i ever took
- unfortunately, there is little likelihood of anyone older than 14 eVer being liberated from the old epistemology
- it's not impossible... just rare
- on the other hand, raising a new generation of trans-humans who were not burdoned by the ridiculous/etc. assumptions of our ancestors, is almost trivially simple... innoculation against unconscious stupid and erroneous assumptions

 - one difference is that r7ling is not intended to replace english (as OSX replaced classic), but to augment it
 - r7ling is intended for problem-solving situations
 - r7ling is not a total solution
 - many different activities could be profitably employed in a variety of problem-solving situations

- you speak of critical thinking skills
- a large part of what we mean by the word think is language... talking to ourselves silently (except in some pathologies)
- despite the fact that english is taking over the world, it is far from ideal for thinking/problem-solving
- in fact, it is seriously flawed
- all languages, "natural" or "artificial" have structures
- like all natural languages, wild english is riddled with stupidity
- it's probably better than others (based on its evolutionary success) but that's not much of a recommendation for choosing the language(s)

we use to develop a more sensible, prosperous, loving, adventurous, artistic, healthy, etc. world

- i am developing EarthLing, a debugged subset of wild english, designed for clear thinking and accurate communication
 - EarthLing is of little value to the vast majority of humans once they have attained puberty
 - the brain has pretty much settled its linguistic/epistemological underpinnings by then and moves on to using those skills in a pursuit of survival and reproduction
 - so the principles of gendo must be sown before puberty
 - my guess is that an hour a week of instruction over a period of 12-24 months would be sufficient to produce a generation of self-learners

pronunciation rebuttal

- i have a different understanding
- in my experience an unschooled speaker is adequate for demonstrating proper pronunciation... they are generally worse than useless in helping an esl learner improve their general, real-world speaking and hearing skills
- most people are oblivious to the details and subtleties involved in producing speech
- they tell the learner that they are saying X when they in fact are saying Y
- this is terribly frustrating to a student who wants to be polite and is now questioning his/her own hearing (not a bad idea)
- the main job of an esl learner is to learn to hear like an american (walk like an egyptian)... to develop american ears
- it's not a bad thing to hear word pronounced correctly... but unless the learner can hear accurately, the sample pronunciation is little help

a new monty python sketch

- eric idle, portraying a village idiot, approaches ... punching himself in the face... hard...
- he yelps with each blow
- jesus is standing on the side of the road observing several possible scenarios
 - jesus watches, doing nothing, as the man passes... then shakes his head
 - jesus grabs the man's fist and stops him... he comforts the man, explains that he doesn't have to keep punching himself, cleans his wounds,
 - "yes, i understand now... i don't have to keep punching myself... i don't have to continue punishing myself... i see it all clearly now... i'm creating my pain
 - he arises and sets off on his journey, a new man, thanking jesus , praising jesus... hallelujah
 - before he has travelled more than 20 paces, he resumes punching himself and yelping
 - jesus says, "fuckin' sapes... i don't know why i waste my time"
 - jesus is really pissed
- you don't wanna fuck with jesus when he's pissed
- jesus zaps him... the man instantly merely blinks out of existence

- but the cool thing, jesus explains, is that the final moment of self-inflicted agony is drawn out to infinity... endless suffering... as long as you can hold on to your idea of who you think you are

- it's important to understand that, once i is liberated from identifying with the language machine, i no longer inhabits the same universe it did previously
- a new i emerges that is not bound by the limits of the old, little i... the language monkey, the sape, the human
- each new i is unique
- in 2005, it is not possible to talk meaningfully about how this new i experiences "reality"
- in the past. liberated people have babbled on and on in their old language... and the results are plain to see
- if we're sincere in our desire to see a liberated world, we must begin to be responsible for the noises we make
- we can do better than our ancestors

- only the truly religious dare to question their faith
- faith transcends logic
- still, logic and clear thinking do have their proper place in a spiritual life
- many of us think about God... a lot

- at present, a large part of what we mean by the word “think” is language... we talk to ourselves... silently... most of us...
- and for us, unfortunately, that language is english
- although english is taking over Earth, it’s only “better” than others languages...
- it’s not perfect
- five problematic aspects of language are involved in (if not totally responsible for (in an operational sense)) the vast majority of human suffering
 - 2 types of language problems:
 - misapplication of otherwise not unreasonable concepts
 - patently ridiculous/self-contradictory ideas
- these problems have plagued us from the beginning
- satan’s fingerprints befoul english
- it’s time to eliminate them
- which brings me to the reason for my contacting you
- there have been several articles recently in the OC Register about you and about P.E.A.C.E.
- one aspect of the plan touch me deeply... about training children
- the sad fact is that most adults are not going to change
- the real challenge is to create a generation of children who are not subject to the same stupidities with which you and i have been burdened
- it’s not that difficult a task, really, if they are trained properly before puberty... before it’s too late
- the question we face is, “?just how much logical/linguistic nonsense is acceptable in a person’s pursuit of God’s will

- my answer is... none
- we should be striving toward zero idiocy
- i may not have yet achieved that level, but i will always be striving toward it... purifying my instrument of thought
- i'd appreciate an opportunity to meet with you so that i might be able to demonstrate some specifics about how language interferes with our ability to think and do God's work effectively... with an eye toward integrating my work into your children's outreach
- let me show you the negative impact erroneous, unconscious assumptions have in our lives... spiritual and secular... and what we can do about, especially for our children
- one hour will be enough for me to give you something worth thinking about
- call me anytime up to 11 pm at 714-670-9143

- merely knowing about these problems isn't enough
- it's like the old saying, you can know all about Jesus... and still not know Jesus
- well, a person can know all about these troublesome aspects of english but not actually reprogram their thinking to eliminate them
- unfortunately, it's almost impossible for most humans to reprogram their language machines once they reach puberty

- maybe you haven't heard this story
- satan is busy at work, preparing to make all the knowledge of humanity available to everyone via the internet
- an assistant says, "this doesn't seem like a good idea... making all this knowledge available to everyone"
- satan replies, "oh, it's ok... i'm going to help them organize it"

- it's not mandatory to have an attitude about it... that's just my human step one: notice/acknowledge that you have a language machine and that it runs on automatic almost all the time — begin to meditate

step two: notice that while you're noticing your language machine (LM) you are not unconsciously under it's spell... actually it often stops when it realizes that someone is really listening

step three: begin observing/studying the LM

step four: begin reprogramming it step five: continue studying/reprogramming it step six: share what you learn the natural method... the way kids learn

- accent reduction has acquired a bad reputation amongst esl students and teachers alike
- few people believe that adult students can really dramatically improve their speaking abilities
- and up to now, they have been right... because the teaching approach has been all wrong
- the primary problem that needs to be corrected is their hearing... once that is fixed, the speaking will take care of itself, just as it does for a child
- people who were raised in a language other than english go not hear the same sounds a native speaker hears
- they have korean ears or chinese ears, etc.
- children spend the first several years of life learning the sounds of their language... which differences make a difference
- by the time they are 6-8 yrs. old they have mastered the phonology and move their primary focus to semantics/syntax/etc
- over the years, i have visited dozens of “accent reduction” classrooms and, without exception, they were a waste of teachers’ and students’ time
- sure, a few people make a little improvement and 1 or 2 might make substantial improvement, but these gains have almost nothing to do with the teaching methodology... those students would have achieved equal success without the class

- the crucial factor in learning to speak intelligibly is hearing accurately
- before you can speak like an american, you must hear like an american
- fortunately, that's not very difficult and doesn't take very long
- once a student has acquired american ears, the process of speaking improvement proceeds naturally, inevitably over the next several years
- a student can then take the process as far as they want... to near native perfection (if they desire)
 - there is certainly no need to take it that far
 - the aim is to achieve a level where native speakers have NO problem understanding the student
 - a slight accent is seen as a mark of sophistication to many natives... so long as it is easy to understand

gendo ear & mouth training

- before you can speak like an american, you've gotta hear like an american
- many speakers of english as a foreign language can read and write as well as or even better than some native english speakers
- but they have trouble ordering a pizza over the phone because they have never mastered english pronunciation
- both students and teachers have pretty much given up on significantly improving pronunciation

- this is tragic
- the reason pronunciation has remained such a problematic issue is that the teaching methods almost universally applied are doomed to failure because they are addressing the wrong issue
- speakers of english as a foreign language do not hear the same “sounds” that a native speak hears
- up until about 5 or 6 years of age a child’s linguistic attention is focussed upon mastering the sound system of the speech community he/she is being raised in
- once the sounds are mastered (hardwired into the young nervous system) the brain turns to the semantic (meaning) and syntactic (grammar) aspects of language
- they aren’t listening to sounds anymore
- they are listening to words/utterances
- listening becomes an unconscious activity
- filters that they acquired for their native language only partly overlap the the sound system of english
- so... the main job of an adult english learner is to acquire a new set of listening filters appropriate to english
- it’s a complete waste of teachers’ and students’ time and energy to explain how to produce the sounds of english until they can actually accurately hear them
- fortunately, it’s not particularly difficult to do this
- 4 -8 months of appropriate ear-training is all that is needed to do it
- after that, a students accurate hearing will enable him or her to continue the process of improving their speech to any degree they wish to attain
- the goal is not necessarily to speak exactly like a native speaker (although that is not impossible)
- the goal is to speak in a way that native speakers have NO problem understanding them
- there is no magic here

- it still requires time and work
- but there is now hope
- it is now possible to dramatically transform your speech
- fon-grafiKs is prescriptive not descriptive
- it is not an attempt to to render all the subtleties of american pronunciation
- it defines 29 basic sounds 8 of which have two forms, bringing the total to 37, from which a speaker may produce an understandable, pleasant english

Steuart Dewar of DateBk5

please allow me to reintroduce myself

- here i sit at starbucks, watching the freeway traffic silently, peacefully flowing by outside ... planning to replace homo sapiens with a better species...
- it wouldn't take much to make a big difference
- i've been juggling multiple very long-term projects... gendo for nearly 40 years now
- and i couldn't do any of it without your help
- thanks again for DateBk5

- if there is any way our interests overlap, it would be fun to work with you
- the most obvious from my viewpoint would love to see the lunar calendar realized in DateBk
- one of the reasons gorillas and all the great apes (and all the rest of us living critters, for that matter) are in such great danger is that sapes have fallen out of touch with reality
- we each, as individuals, wield more energy/power/impact on Earth in one day than an entire tribe of people could in a year
- and the sapes don't even give it a thought
- saving the gorillas is a wonderful thing
- but the real work is much deeper
- we need a new species... a predecessor of homo sapiens
- if that doesn't happen, the gorillas and the rest of this will be gone
- i suspect Earth will recover
- recovery might not be an appropriate analogy
- this might be all a part of Earth's metamorphosis into a single conscious entity... or maybe not
- it will become clear in the next few years
- one of the primary systems that holds the hallucination in place is the gregorian calendar
- the word moon is from the same root as moon
- for tens of thousands of years, people's lives were governed by the real world
- they marked time by referring to the cycles of the moon
- sapes have lost their connection with the real world and the old calendar is a demonstration of both cause and effect
- congratulations on the latest victory for the gorillas

NG ear-training ad TOEFL students

- before you can speak like an american, you've gotta hear like an american
- the primary problem for TOEFL students learning to speak american is that they don't hear the same sounds that native speakers do
- hearing is not a merely passive phenomenon, like a tape recorder
- hearing is an active process... a filtering process learned before the age of 6 usually
- babies spend the first several years mastering the sound system of their native tongue(s)... that's what babbling is all about
- after they have mastered it, they move on to meaning and other higher-level subtleties of language

- forget everything you have been taught about learning to speak american well
- forget about vowels and consonants
- these old ways of talking about speech are old and have little relevance to anyone learning to speak american in the 21st century
- gendo is an entirely new approach to teaching american speaking
- before you can speak, you must hear

- babies babble
- they master the sound system before they even begin to deal with meaning/etc.
- you mastered your native sound system by the time you were six... and then stopped listening to the sounds and concentrated on meanings
- your hearing is still governed by the filters that were hard-wired in by the time you were six
- fortunately, it's not difficult to retrain your brain
- it takes between 100 and 300 hours of practice
- once you have mastered hearing the sounds, you can correct your own pronunciation
- you can get as good as you want

gendo ear-training

- finally, a method that really makes a difference in your ability to listen to and speak american english
- in the past and still today, teachers have lectured and explained english phonology to hopeful students, showed them all the sounds and explained how to produce the sounds... all to no avail
- before you can speak like an american, you've gotta hear like an american
- the prevailing opinion among students of ESL and even among most teachers is that there isn't really much that can be done to help improve a speakers ability... some people are just better than others at acquiring speaking/listening skills and there just isn't much to be done about it
- and, unfortunately, that opinion has been generally true... until now
- the primary problem has been the lack of any specific, reliable method for training students to hear properly

- children usually master the sounds of their native language between the ages of 6 and 8
- babbling is the beginning of the process
- after that, they begin to concentrate on meaning and other higher level aspects of language
- the listening filters become hard-wired, automatic
- and historically, this has been fine
- until recently, most people never had a need to learn another language
- but that world is gone now
- people need to learn english to get ahead in an increasingly our global civilization
- and reading/writing is not enough
- that's very important... even essential
- but listening/speaking is even more important
- language always has been, is now and always will be primarily an activity performed by a person's ears and mouth... reading/writing is secondary
- real mastery of english is founded upon speaking/hearing
- and the most fundamental of all skills is hearing
- if that isn't mastered sufficiently, nothing solid can be built upon it
- luckily, it's not that difficult to retrain the ears to deal effectively with a new language
- the training is accomplished with ear-training dictation exercises
- takes between 50 and 200 hours of training to acquire accurate american hearing
- once the student can hear accurately, he or she will be able to correct their own speaking to whatever degree they choose
- although it's not impossible to achieve, there's no need to eliminate a foreign accent entirely
- in fact, a slight accent is considered a mark of distinction/superiority in america

- the most important thing is that you are easily understood under most circumstances and can easily understand americans

- when i quoted ink prices, i incorrectly included the paper cost
- the correct total cost (ink and paper), printing 13x19 images on an Epson 2200 is $7... the paper costs $2
- so the ink costs $5 for 247 sq. in.
- the standard image size i plan on rendering with the 7600 will be 22x33 inches... 726 sq. in. on a piece of paper 24x35 in.
- this works out to $14.70 per image
- i expect to get 33 (maybe 34) images from a 100-foot roll

email to yazhe zhang subject: Please allow me to introduce myself

My name is Heron Stone. Lu and I have been friends for a long time.
She was my student for a while.

I'm writing to you because I am developing a new system for helping English learners speak and listen more effectively.

Until now, there has been no even mildly effective method to do this. I have audited more than 20 different "accent reduction" and speaking skills classes over the years, and EVERY single one of them was a total waste of time... for both students and teachers. Sure, a few students in a large class may improve a little, but those students would have improved without the course anyway

The reason these classes all fail is that they are teaching the wrong material and teaching it backward. It is absolutely useless to teach speaking/articulation skills to a student who cannot easily hear/identify the basic sounds of English.

All humans (even babies) must learn the sound system of their language before they move on to higher-level systems. And in this area, adults are lucky... we can master the art of hearing much more quickly than babies do. It takes them several years to do it. Babies are not very smart or focused. With intention, focus and commitment, most any adult can master the listening aspect of English in 50-200 hours.

Mouth training may proceed alongside ear-training, but the ear-training is always primary.

The system now is tuned toward American English... my accent. But it could easily be adapted for British English. In fact, it could probably be adapted to teach any language at all. The basic principle holds for all language learners... "You gotta hear it before you can speak it."

Phonographics is based upon the principle that before you can speak like an American/Englishman, you've gotta hear like an American/Englishman.

Phonographics is presently designed to teach American speech, but it would not be difficult to adapt it for British pronunciation

The course is divided into two parts: ear training and mouth training.

The two parts may be taught simultaneously, but ear training is primary.
It's pointless to attempt to teach someone to speak English until they can hear it.

Native Chinese speakers listen with Chinese ears... automatically filtering speech sound appropriately for Chinese. But this way of listening will not work for English.

The first task for a language learner is to master listening. This is what babies are doing during the "babbling" stage. Fortunately, it's not very difficult for a person to learn to hear English correctly. It takes most people between 50 and 200 hours to do it.

Once a student can hear appropriately, she can correct her own pronunciation.

The attached files are for your eyes only. DO NOT show them to anyone please. They are working drafts.

Ultimately, i expect that the ear-training part of the course can be learned without the need for an in-person teacher. It will be delivered entirely over the web. The mouth-training will require some time with an instructor, although, this too could be done using Skype or some similar service.

- i do... well it's not in place yet, but it wouldn't be very difficult to get it going
- the age of (surely misnamed) homo sapiens is over
- defining species by biological interbreedability is not a bad way to think about things
- but it is not the only way of drawing useful distinctions, and certainly not THE WAY IT IS... it's just one way of thinking about things
- a more important distinction is the functioning of the language machine... specifically... does an individual believe everything it hears itself say... is it entirely identified with the story told in the language machine
- or is it liberated from that stuff and in tune with the mystery of the one looking thru its eyes
- without great trauma, or drugs or a peculiar internal obsession, it's almost impossible for a post-pubescent sape to reprogram its language machine to eliminate the erroneous unconscious assumptions imposed on its thinking by the brain-damaging language that was installed in infancy
- children, if brought up and educated properly, simply wouldn't be subject to these stupidities
- all we can do is raise a generation of transapes who are not as damaged as we are and hope they can figure it out

ear training

- most people are of the opinion that not much can be done to dramatically improve an adult's English-speaking skills
- many people have taken so-called accent reduction courses and found them to be mostly a waste of time, coming out at the end of the course sounding exactly like they did in the beginning
- i have observed many different classes in both public colleges/universities and private TOEFL/ESL schools and can say confidently that not one was effective at improving the speaking skills of the students
- there's a reason for this failure and reason for optimism

- all these courses fail because they do not address the primary need of ESL students... to hear English accurately
- before you can speak english well, a student MUST hear english well
- babies spend the first 5-6 years of the lives mastering the sounds of their native language
- after the basic hearing filters are wired into place, the babies turn their attention more and more to syntax and semantics... structure and meaning of language
- adults have many difficulties acquiring a foreign language
- one of the primary tasks of an ESL learner is to acquire english ears
- it doesn't take long and it's not difficult, but there is no magic in developing English ears
- it does take an investment of time... most students can accomplish it with 50-200 hours of dictation practice/training
- after a student can hear the sounds of english accurately, they can begin to correct their own pronunciation

THE DAIR project

- one moon on each of the five basics plus a recap
- diaries to log noticings of linguistic stupidities
- listen to the mp3 EVERY NIGHT
- repeat one year later
- one aim of a problem-solving situation is to accurately analyze a situation
- there should be zero tolerance for unconscious stupidity
- conscious stupidity is another matter

05/11/16 — 15:15

- after a week of cold, cloudy november weather, today was hot and sunny
- looking out the window at Borders, i saw a big truck approaching on the freeway outside
- it had large beautiful lettering on the side...

Alas... Spring!

- as it got closer, i saw it more clearly...

Atlas Spring

05/11/16 — 15:28

- the most important aspect of qendo is the first act/attitude of defining a situation as a problem-solving situation/opportunity
- do you choose to bitch and moan and whine about it or do you want to deal with it and put it behind you for good
- of course, many people do prefer to merely whine and have no intention of actually thinking rigorously about the situation
- that's fine... it is useful to be aware of everyone's intentions... including your own remembering my earliest thought

- i've told the story so many times that i am no longer sure what i really remembered, or what really happened, if anything... maybe it was all a construction... it never happened
- language has replaced the original experience... whatever it might have been
- was i standing in a darkened room, at the door, with the doorknob above me

- WS stopped syncing after a hard crash
- when the automatic restore was finished, my main ws file (in which i write every day) was missing everything after Sept. 2
- however, the file on mac's HD was up to date
- now new files created on the clie are (not) transferred to the HD
- i wrote this on the clie and then had to reenter it on the mac because it didn't sync
- new files on the HD are not transferred to the clie
- it appears that files on the handheld are only intermittently transferred/udated to the mac
- previously, when i first opened WS after a normal sync operation, i always had to wait while it finished "scanning handheld"

● now it immediately opens up the files... no “scanning handheld” notice

- i'm dealing with survival
- of course, millions of people live much of their lives like this... and most of them suspect that they have nothing to live for anyway... yet they struggle on... for one more day... maybe...
- i, on the other hand, have a mission in life beyond mere survival
- they survive in order to survive
- i survive in order to participate in the creation of a new world and my part has something to do with language
